Legend to attached Sketch

1. Building 1 is two-stories in the area marked with the figure 1. The remainder of the building is one-story. The building is approximately 24 by 12 meters and it has a tile roof. On the lower floor there are storerooms, on the upper floor are the Commander's offices and a one-room club. The other part of the building, presumably the one-story section, are the soldier's quarters, mess hall, etc. In front of the building is a cement dance floor and a small garden. During the summer and on Sundays, members of the DSNM from various work projects in the area and people from the surrounding villages visit the zastava and spend the day with the border guards who are not on duty.
2. Building 2 is an old two-story building but it is well preserved. It is approximately 18 by 6 meters and has a tile roof. The first floor of the building are the stables and storage for hay. The second floor are quarters of the anti-aircraft soldiers, about seven or eight men, and the "stantsiya" (presumed to be an early warning post).

7. X3 is a two-story building built in 1955 and it has a tile roof and is approximately 16 by 8 meters. The first floor has a bakery and storerooms for flour and government ordered potatoes. The first floor was formerly a warehouse for artificial fertilizer and groceries. On the second floor are Selsuvet (village council) party club, library, and three classrooms for the progymnasia (junior high school).
8. X4 is a two-story building that was built in 1948-1949, it has a slate roof and is approximately 16 by 8 meters. On the first floor there is a grocery store and a small storeroom, there is another small room formerly used as a tavern and is now another storage room. The second floor has a dry goods store and two rooms that are used as living quarters, one room is occupied by a Moslem priest and the other by the village baker.
9. X5 is an old two-story building about 12 by 8 meters, it has a slate roof and it is the village mosque.
10. X6 is an old one-story building of 8 by 4 meters with a slate roof. There are three small rooms which are used for the village dispensary and the quarters of the male nurse.
